The disclosure is objected to because of the following informalities: the use of “bombe” in the title, specification, and claims, appears to be a translation error. The term “tank” is suggested as a replacement.

Appropriate correction is required.

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 1-2 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Cartwright et al. Cartwright shows a main tank 11 with a fuel pump 15 and a fuel pipe 19 that permits flow from auxiliary tank 13 to the main tank. When the auxiliary tank is lower than the main tank, valve 28 isolates the tanks.

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1-2 are alternatively rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Lemmon. Lemmon shows a main tank 10 and auxiliary tank 12 connected by passage 16 that will prevent flow into the auxiliary tank when it is lower than the main tank. The intake line 22 does not show a pump. However, it is very well known to place a pump in a fuel tank. It would have been obvious to put a pump in the Lemmon tank to maintain prime and reduce crowding in the engine compartment.

Claim 3 is objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. Banker shows an arrangement connecting multiple tanks, each with its own in tank pump 14, 15, with an isolation valve (Fig. 2) intended to control flow when one tank is higher than the other. Asken shows a similar device, with an isolation valve 42, between two tanks, where there is no fuel pump. Parker shows a single tank with two pick-up tubes 5, 9, connected by isolation valve 2. One tube has an in tank pump 12. Henderson shows a similar system with isolation valve 10.
